TRANSFORMATION REPORT · 2026

From Roadmap to Realised Value

A digital transformation report on sequencing, funding, and measuring enterprise change.

24 mo	3	98%	180+
Target payback	Value gates	Client retention	Enterprises served

Why roadmaps stall

A roadmap is a sequencing artefact, not a value artefact. Programs stall when the roadmap survives contact with reality but the funding model does not: budget is released annually while value arrives in quarters, and the first slip removes the sponsor's confidence rather than the plan's assumptions.

Three value gates

Gate	Timing	Evidence required
Feasible	Week 6	Data readiness score, gap register, cost of deviation
Adopted	Day 90 post go-live	Transaction coverage, spreadsheet displacement
Realised	Month 12	Run-cost delta, cycle-time delta, headcount redeployment

Sequencing that protects momentum

- Lead with the process that owns the money — order-to-cash or record-to-report.
- Land finance and one operational domain before expanding modules.
- Defer analytics until transactional data is trustworthy, then move fast.
- Introduce AI where a human already reviews a queue, not where judgement is scarce.

“Value is realised at the point a manager stops maintaining their own spreadsheet. Everything before that is progress, not value.”

Operating model after go-live

Transformation ends when the run organisation can absorb two Microsoft release waves a year without an external program. That requires a product owner per domain, an automated regression pack, and a standing backlog funded from run budget.

Capability	Owner	Cadence
Release wave assessment	Product owner	Twice yearly
Regression automation	Platform team	Every sprint
Adoption review	Process owner	Monthly
Value reporting	Transformation office	Quarterly

How Myrmetics engages

- Discovery workshop and value gate definition — two to three weeks.
- Delivery with blended onshore/nearshore pods and named accountability.
- Hypercare and capability transfer into your run organisation.
- Optional managed service for release waves and continuous improvement.
